Important Notice: These Terms govern general platform use, customer orders, memberships, digital content and products. Agent, Affiliate, commission, compensation, qualification, marketing-compliance and business-partner matters are governed separately and are not created by these Terms.

1. Company, Scope and Contract Structure

These Terms and Conditions (the “Terms”) govern access to and use of the website www.coindroplegacy.com, the Coindrop platform, customer accounts, member areas, education platform, digital content, online and live education, community functions, e-commerce functions, physical products, merchandise items, collectible coins, support functions and other products or services offered within the Coindrop ecosystem.

These Terms apply to consumers and business users, except to the extent mandatory law provides otherwise. By using the website, creating an account, placing an order, accessing digital content, participating in live formats, using platform functions or accepting these Terms, the user agrees to be bound by these Terms.

These Terms are platform and customer terms. They do not create Agent, Affiliate, distributor, reseller, employee, franchise, investment, financial-advisory or business-opportunity status. Any Agent, Affiliate, referral, commission, payout, qualification, sales-organization, marketing-compliance or business-partner matter is governed exclusively by the applicable separate Agent Agreement, Compensation Plan, Policies & Procedures, Marketing and Compliance Guidelines or other partner documents.

2. Coindrop Entities, Contracting Party and Regional Roles

The Coindrop ecosystem may involve the following entities, depending on the user’s country, transaction type, checkout flow, invoice, applicable law and internal group structure:

(a) Coindrop Legacy F.Z.E, Registration No. 53047, Ajman Free Zone, United Arab Emirates (“Coindrop Legacy F.Z.E” or “UAE Company”). Coindrop Legacy F.Z.E is intended to be the owner, holder, controller or licensor of the Coindrop brand, trademarks, logos, trade names, platform content, educational materials, digital assets, intellectual property, platform concepts, technology rights and related rights within the Coindrop ecosystem. For users in Europe and other non-U.S./non-Canadian markets, Coindrop Legacy F.Z.E may also act as the contracting, invoicing, service-providing or platform-providing entity, unless another Coindrop entity is clearly disclosed at checkout, on the invoice or in a country-specific notice.

(b) Coindrop LLC, Idaho, United States, File No. 0006790994, principal office 101 E Main St #202, Rexburg, ID 83440, United States (“Coindrop LLC” or “U.S. Company”). Coindrop LLC may act as the contracting, invoicing, payment-processing, order-processing, fulfillment, customer-service or operational entity for users, customers or transactions in the United States, Canada or other markets where Coindrop LLC is identified in the checkout process, invoice, receipt, account area or country-specific notice. Coindrop LLC may use Coindrop trademarks, brand assets, platform content and intellectual property under license or authorization from Coindrop Legacy F.Z.E.

For purposes of these Terms, “Coindrop,” “Company,” “we,” “us” or “our” means the relevant Coindrop entity responsible for the relevant transaction, service, platform function, invoice, customer relationship or legal obligation. Where both Coindrop Legacy F.Z.E and Coindrop LLC are involved, references to Coindrop may include both entities to the extent of their respective roles.

PLATFORM TERMS

The entity identified at checkout, on the order confirmation, invoice, receipt, payment page or account area is the primary contracting entity for that transaction. If no specific entity is identified, the default contracting entity is Coindrop Legacy F.Z.E for users outside the United States and Canada, and Coindrop LLC for users in the United States and Canada, unless mandatory law or a country-specific notice requires a different result.

3. Definitions

“Platform” means the website, customer area, member area, education platform, backoffice or account functions, community functions, digital content, technical systems and other online or offline services operated, licensed, provided or made available within the Coindrop ecosystem.

“Customer” means a person or entity purchasing or using products, content, memberships, services or platform access from Coindrop.

“User” means any person accessing the website, platform, content, products or services.

“Member” means a registered user with access to specific platform functions, memberships or content areas.

“Content” means videos, courses, e-books, texts, graphics, live sessions, recordings, presentations, downloads, trainings, documents, templates, designs, software elements, brand materials and other materials.

“Products” means digital content, memberships, educational products, e-books, live formats, services, merchandise items, physical collectible coins and other goods or services.

“Relevant Coindrop Entity” means the Coindrop entity that is responsible for the specific transaction, service, order, invoice, platform function, data processing activity or legal obligation in question.

4. Relationship to Agent, Affiliate and Partner Agreements

These Terms apply to all platform users, including customers, members, Agents, Affiliates and other business partners, to the extent they use the website, platform, customer account, member area, digital content, community functions or e-commerce functions.

No user becomes an Agent, Affiliate, distributor, business partner or commission-eligible person merely by accepting these Terms. Such status requires separate registration, separate acceptance of the applicable partner documents and confirmation by Coindrop.

To the extent a matter relates to general use of the platform, content, accounts, digital materials, orders, payment processing, customer functions, support or customer-facing services, these Terms apply. To the extent a matter specifically relates to Agent or Affiliate status, commissions, compensation, qualification, payouts, sales rules, marketing obligations, FTC compliance, team structure, business-partner duties or similar matters, the applicable separate Agent, Affiliate, Compensation Plan, Policies & Procedures or partner documents apply and prevail in case of conflict.

5. Services and Platform

Coindrop operates or makes available an e-commerce, education and community platform offering digital and physical products and services. The platform may include online courses, live education, video content, e-books, trainings, educational materials, community features, mentoring-oriented formats, tools, merchandise items, physical collectible coins and related services.

The specific scope of services is determined by the relevant product description, ordering process, customer account, member area, invoice, confirmation email or other official information provided by Coindrop.

Coindrop may provide services itself or through affiliated companies, licensors, service providers, logistics partners, payment providers, video platforms, webinar providers, IT providers, contractors or other third parties. Coindrop may further develop, modify, expand, restrict or discontinue services where reasonably acceptable for users or where legal, technical, security-related, compliance-related or economic reasons require such changes. Free content, bonus content, trial access, promotional services or time-limited content may be changed or discontinued at any time unless a binding duration has been expressly promised.

6. No Financial, Investment, Tax, Legal or Individual Business Advice

All Coindrop content is provided solely for general information, education, personal development, practical orientation and illustration. It does not constitute financial, investment, tax, legal, insurance, business, psychological, medical or other individual advice.

To the extent content addresses topics such as money, markets, purchasing power, inflation, entrepreneurship, sales, leadership, personal development, precious metals, collectible coins, real estate or economic concepts, it is provided solely for educational and informational purposes. Coindrop does not provide personalized recommendations to buy, sell or hold assets, financial instruments, real estate, precious metals, collectible coins or any other product.

Users make all decisions independently and should consult appropriate professional advisors before making financial, legal, tax, business or purchasing decisions. Examples, strategies, scenarios, historical developments, experiences, testimonials or possible outcomes are not guarantees, promises, forecasts, financial recommendations or calls to take a specific action. Coindrop is not a financial institution, bank, broker, asset manager, tax advisor, legal advisor or investment advisor.

7. Eligibility and User Obligations

Use of the platform requires that the user is of legal age and has full legal capacity. The platform is generally intended for persons aged 18 or older. Coindrop may restrict access in jurisdictions where a product, service, content, platform function or payment method is unavailable, restricted, illegal or not yet approved for launch.

The user must provide complete, accurate and current information during registration, ordering and use. Relevant changes must be updated in the user account or communicated to Coindrop without undue delay. Coindrop may make certain services subject to additional requirements, including identity verification, age verification, payment capacity, residence, delivery country, regulatory availability, sanctions screening, KYC checks or availability of the relevant service.

The user is solely responsible for ensuring that access, use, purchase, ownership, import, export, transfer, resale or use of products and content is lawful in the user's country or place of residence.

8. Registration, Account, Login Credentials and Security

Certain services require registration. Registration may include customer data collection, selection of a product or membership, acceptance of these Terms, confirmation of additional terms and, where applicable, email verification or identity verification.

The user must create the account truthfully and keep login credentials confidential. Login credentials may not be shared with third parties, published, sold, rented, transferred or otherwise made available to unauthorized persons. Sharing login credentials or digital content with non-members or persons without their own access is strictly prohibited. The same applies to shared use of one account by multiple persons unless expressly permitted.

The user is responsible for all activities conducted through the account where the user is responsible for unauthorized use. Any suspected misuse, loss or unauthorized use of login credentials must be reported immediately to support@coindroplegacy.com. Coindrop may temporarily or permanently suspend accounts where there are indications of misuse, security risks, false information, payment issues, legal violations, sanctions risks, fraud risks or violations of these Terms.

9. Contract Formation, Ordering Process and Electronic Communications

The presentation of products and services on the website does not constitute a legally binding offer unless expressly stated otherwise. It is generally an invitation to place an order. Users may review and correct entries before placing an order where the technical implementation provides this.

By clicking the relevant order button or completing an equivalent ordering process, the user submits a binding offer. A contract is formed when the relevant Coindrop entity confirms the order, grants access, ships a product, issues an invoice, accepts payment or otherwise accepts the order.

Coindrop may reject or cancel orders, including in cases of false information, payment issues, delivery obstacles, obvious pricing errors, lack of product availability, compliance concerns, fraud suspicion, sanctions risks, regulatory restrictions or legal obstacles.

The user agrees that communications relating to registration, orders, access, invoices, support, security and contract administration may be made electronically, including by email, platform message, user account notification or other electronic means.

10. Prices, Currency, Payments, Taxes, Fees and Payment Providers

Unless expressly stated otherwise during checkout, Coindrop prices, invoices and payment obligations are shown and charged in United States Dollars (USD). Coindrop does not use EUR as a default contractual currency. Currency conversions, exchange-rate differences, card-provider conversion fees, bank fees or other currency-related charges are the user's responsibility unless mandatory law provides otherwise.

The prices, payment terms and service descriptions displayed during the ordering process apply. Prices may vary depending on market, product, availability, payment method, delivery country, tax status, regulatory requirements, shipping costs or promotional conditions. Unless otherwise stated, prices are inclusive or exclusive of taxes as shown during checkout or on the invoice.

The user is responsible for local taxes, sales tax, VAT/GST, duties, import costs, customs charges, bank fees, exchange fees or other charges where legally applicable or caused by the user's payment method or country.

Payments may be processed through external payment providers. Additional terms of the relevant payment provider may apply. Coindrop generally does not store full credit card details. In case of failed payments, chargebacks, payment reversals, fraud suspicion or outstanding amounts, Coindrop may suspend access, withhold orders, stop deliveries, claim collection costs, offset amounts, request additional verification or terminate agreements to the extent legally permitted.

The user may not use another person's payment details without authorization. Coindrop may request payment evidence, identity documents, tax information or other information if required for fraud prevention, compliance, sanctions screening, contract performance or payment processing.

11. Digital Content, Online Courses, E-Books, Videos and Live Education

Digital content may be provided by download, streaming, member area, email, platform access or other electronic delivery. The user receives a limited, revocable, non-exclusive, non-transferable and non-sublicensable license to use purchased or provided content solely for personal purposes or, for business users, solely for internal purposes.

PLATFORM TERMS

Live sessions, webinars or online events may require technical prerequisites. Coindrop is not responsible for connection issues, device issues, software issues or other circumstances within the user's sphere. Coindrop may record live sessions and make them available in the member area where announced or required to provide the service. Users may not make their own recordings without written permission.

Coindrop may change the order, speakers, dates, content, modules, course structure, availability and technical presentation where the essential character of the service is not unreasonably impaired. Learning progress, results and implementation outcomes depend on individual circumstances, experience, effort, time, market conditions and other factors. Coindrop does not guarantee any particular personal, professional, economic, sales-related, learning-related or financial result.

12. Physical Products, Merchandise and Collectible Coins

Coindrop may offer physical products, merchandise items and physical collectible coins. Product images may be illustrative and may differ in color, appearance, size, packaging, production details or technical details from the delivered product where reasonably acceptable.

Collectible coins, precious metals, bars, limited items or other collectibles may be subject to value fluctuations, market changes, demand changes, valuation differences, liquidity risks, tax consequences and resale risks. Such products may include collector premiums, spreads, storage costs, shipping costs, insurance costs, customs costs, payment costs, transaction costs or other costs. A later sale may occur below the original purchase price.

No statement by Coindrop should be understood as an investment recommendation, value guarantee, liquidity promise, buyback promise, resale guarantee, price forecast or tax advice. Users should obtain their own professional advice before making financial, tax, resale or storage decisions.

Limited products may sell out quickly. Coindrop may limit quantities, allocate stock, partially fulfill orders, offer substitute products or cancel orders where products are unavailable, restricted, damaged, incorrectly priced, subject to supply-chain issues or affected by compliance restrictions.

13. Delivery, Shipping, Risk of Loss, Customs and Import

Delivery times and shipping information are non-binding unless an expressly binding delivery date has been agreed. Delays may arise due to logistics providers, customs, force majeure, payment checks, security checks, compliance checks, address errors, supply-chain disruptions or product availability.

Partial deliveries are permitted where reasonable. The user must provide a correct and complete delivery address and ensure acceptance of delivery. Additional costs caused by incorrect address information, refusal of acceptance, non-collection or failed delivery attempts may be charged to the user where legally permitted.

For cross-border deliveries, customs duties, import taxes, VAT/GST, customs brokerage fees and local charges may apply and are the responsibility of the user unless stated otherwise at checkout or required otherwise by mandatory law. The user is responsible for ensuring that import, possession and use of the ordered product is permitted in the destination country.

14. Cancellation, Withdrawal, Returns and Refunds

Consumers may have statutory cancellation, withdrawal or return rights depending on their place of residence and applicable law. Coindrop will respect such mandatory statutory rights.

For digital content, online courses, downloads, streaming access, memberships or other digital services, any statutory withdrawal right may expire early if the user expressly consents to immediate performance and acknowledges that the withdrawal right may be lost, where such consent and acknowledgment are required by law.

Return rights for physical products may be limited or excluded where products are customized, sealed for health or hygiene reasons and unsealed, perishable, damaged by the user, or otherwise excluded under applicable law. Products must be returned in accordance with the return instructions provided by Coindrop.

Refunds may be made to the original payment method unless another method is required or agreed. Shipping costs, customs duties, payment fees, exchange fees or return costs may be non-refundable where legally permitted. Chargebacks without prior communication may lead to account suspension, collection measures or additional verification.

15. Memberships, Terms, Renewals, Upgrades and Termination

Memberships, subscriptions or platform access may be booked one-time, monthly, annually or for other periods depending on the offer. Term, renewal, cancellation period, scope of services and price are determined by the ordering process, product description or user account.

Where a membership or subscription renews automatically, the renewal terms, renewal interval, price and cancellation options will be disclosed before purchase as required by applicable law. Users may cancel according to the cancellation process shown in the account area, checkout information, confirmation email or by contacting support@coindroplegacy.com where required.

Upgrades, downgrades, extensions or changes may be subject to additional terms. Coindrop may suspend or terminate access for payment failure, fraud suspicion, breach of these Terms, legal restrictions, misuse or security risks. Termination of platform access does not automatically affect separate Agent, Affiliate or partner agreements unless the relevant separate agreement or applicable law provides otherwise.

16. Changes to Platform, Content and Services

Coindrop may further develop, modify or replace content, features, user interfaces, technical processes, platform areas, providers, tools or services where reasonably acceptable for users. This applies especially to technical improvements, security requirements, legal changes, content updates, provider changes, payment-provider requirements, compliance requirements or operational needs.

If a change materially affects a paid core service, Coindrop will provide reasonable information or remedies where required by law. Free, promotional, beta, voluntary or bonus functions may be changed or discontinued at any time unless a binding commitment has been made.

17. Intellectual Property, License and Prohibition of Sharing

All content, trademarks, logos, trade names, designs, texts, videos, e-books, course materials, presentations, graphics, recordings, downloads, software elements, platform structures, user interfaces, brand assets and other materials are intellectual property, licensed property or confidential information of Coindrop Legacy F.Z.E, Coindrop LLC, their affiliates, licensors or other rights holders.

Coindrop Legacy F.Z.E is intended to be the owner, holder, controller or licensor of the Coindrop brand, trademarks, logos, platform content, educational materials, technology rights and other intellectual property used within the Coindrop ecosystem. Coindrop LLC and other Coindrop group entities may use such rights under license, authorization or group arrangement.

The user receives only a limited, revocable, non-exclusive, non-transferable and non-sublicensable license to use the platform and content for permitted personal or internal business purposes. The user may not copy, download, record, reproduce, publish, sell, rent, share, sublicense, translate, modify, scrape, train AI systems with, create derivative works from, make available to third parties or otherwise exploit Coindrop content without written permission, except where mandatory law permits.

Sharing login credentials, course content, videos, e-books, recordings, screenshots, documents, templates or member-area materials with unauthorized persons is prohibited. Violations may result in immediate suspension, termination, injunctive relief, disclosure claims, damages, reimbursement of costs and further civil or criminal legal action. All rights not expressly granted remain reserved.

18. Trademarks, Brand Assets and Public Representation

Coindrop, Coindrop Legacy, logos, designs, slogans, graphics, product names, platform names and other identifiers may be used only in accordance with official approvals, brand guidelines or written consent. Users may not create the impression that they are employees, officers, owners, authorized representatives, official corporate channels or legal agents of Coindrop unless expressly authorized in writing.

Use of Coindrop marks, confusingly similar terms or brand assets in domains, usernames, social-media pages, groups, apps, paid advertising, email addresses, company names, trade names, events or promotional materials is prohibited without written approval. Coindrop may require removal, correction or transfer of infringing or confusing uses to the extent legally permitted.

19. Community Features, User Content and Conduct Rules

Where Coindrop provides community features, comments, chats, groups, profiles or similar interaction options, the user is responsible for user-generated content. The following are prohibited: unlawful, offensive, discriminatory, misleading, threatening, defamatory, harassing, pornographic, violent, extremist, spam-like, manipulative, commercial, political, medical, financial-advisory or rights-infringing content.

The user grants Coindrop a non-exclusive, worldwide, royalty-free license to host, store, display, reproduce and technically process user content to the extent necessary to provide and secure the platform, moderate content, enforce these Terms or comply with law.

Coindrop may moderate, hide, remove or restrict content and suspend users where violations of these Terms, laws, third-party rights or community rules exist or are suspected. The user must not disclose confidential information, personal data of third parties, login credentials, payment data or private communications without authorization.

20. Reviews, Testimonials, Recommendations and Public Statements

If users publish reviews, testimonials, social-media posts or recommendations about Coindrop, they must be truthful, not misleading and based on genuine experiences. Users may not make claims about Coindrop products, services, results, value, resale, financial outcomes, health outcomes, legal effects or business outcomes that Coindrop itself could not lawfully make.

If there is a business relationship, family relationship, Agent status, Affiliate status, referral relationship, compensation, free product, discount, incentive, material connection or other relationship with Coindrop that may affect how others evaluate the statement, the user must clearly and conspicuously disclose that connection close to the statement. Such disclosures must be understandable, unavoidable and not hidden in links, hashtags, profile pages, fine print or "more" sections.

Coindrop may request correction or removal of misleading, non-compliant, outdated or unauthorized public statements.

21. Prohibited Use, Abuse, Circumvention and Security Rules

The user may not misuse the platform. In particular, the following are prohibited: sharing login credentials or content with non-members; circumventing technical protection measures or access restrictions; scraping, automated extraction, bots or unauthorized data mining; reverse engineering or attacking platform systems; uploading malware; disrupting platform operations; using false identities; manipulating payments, orders, reviews, referrals or accounts; infringing intellectual property rights; violating sanctions, export controls, consumer protection law, data protection law or criminal law; using the platform for unlawful, fraudulent, deceptive or misleading purposes; and circumventing payment, security, compliance, KYC or fraud checks.

22. Availability, Maintenance and Technical Requirements

Coindrop strives to maintain stable availability of the platform. However, uninterrupted, error-free or permanently unchanged availability is not guaranteed. Maintenance, updates, security measures, technical issues, third-party outages, overloads, force majeure or other circumstances may affect availability.

The user is responsible for suitable technical requirements, including internet access, device, browser, software, email access and, where relevant, audio/video equipment. Coindrop may require security updates, password changes, two-factor authentication or other protective measures where appropriate.

23. Third-Party Services, Payment Providers and External Content

The platform may integrate services, content or functions of third parties, including video platforms, webinar tools, payment providers, hosting providers, analytics providers, email services, calendar tools, logistics providers or other technical providers.

Third-party terms and privacy notices may apply. Coindrop is not responsible for the availability, content, privacy practices, technical performance or decisions of external providers to the extent legally permitted. Changes, interruptions or restrictions by third-party providers may affect the platform without automatically creating claims against Coindrop.

24. Product Notices, Risk Disclosures and Collectible Coins

Buying, owning and selling physical collectible coins, precious metals, bars or other tangible assets may carry risks. Prices, market values, demand, liquidity, resale opportunities, premiums, tax treatment and legal conditions may fluctuate.

Collectible coins and physical products are not bank deposits, securities, insurance products or guaranteed investments. Coindrop does not promise appreciation, liquidity, buyback, resale, tax benefits, inflation protection, financial security or suitability for any person. Users are responsible for their own decisions and should consult independent professional advisors where appropriate.

25. Liability, Warranties, Guarantees and Limitations

Mandatory warranty rights and consumer rights remain unaffected where legally required. Coindrop is fully liable for intent, gross negligence, injury to life, body or health and in cases of mandatory statutory liability.

In case of ordinary negligence, Coindrop is liable, to the extent legally permitted, only for breach of essential contractual obligations and limited to typical, foreseeable damages. Coindrop is not liable, to the extent legally permitted, for indirect damages, lost profits, lost results, market changes, value losses, data loss, loss of use, third-party provider failures, user decisions or damages arising from the user's independent implementation of educational content.

Coindrop does not guarantee learning results, personal results, business results, income, sales, value development, market prices, resale opportunities, community outcomes, platform availability or any other specific outcome. Liability limitations also apply to directors, officers, employees, contractors, service providers, affiliates and licensors of Coindrop to the extent legally permitted.

26. Compliance, KYC, Sanctions, AML and Fraud Prevention

Coindrop may conduct fraud prevention, identity verification, age verification, address verification, sanctions screening, anti-money laundering, tax, export-control or compliance checks where legally required or reasonably appropriate for platform security, payment processing, order fulfillment or legal compliance.

Coindrop may hold, review, reject or cancel orders, payments, deliveries, access, refunds or transactions where fraud, abuse, sanctions violations, money laundering, payment risk, false information, regulatory restrictions or other legal concerns exist. The user represents that the platform will not be used in violation of sanctions, export controls, anti-money laundering laws, tax law, consumer law, data protection law or other applicable laws. Coindrop may disclose legally required information to authorities, courts, payment providers, logistics partners, service providers or other parties where legally required or permitted.

27. Privacy

Information on the processing of personal data is provided in Coindrop's Privacy Policy available at www.coindroplegacy.com or otherwise provided during registration or checkout. Depending on the service, country, transaction and internal group structure, Coindrop Legacy F.Z.E, Coindrop LLC and/or other service providers may be involved in data processing.

The Privacy Policy is not part of these Terms but explains the nature, scope and purposes of data processing. The user must not submit personal data of third parties through the platform unless a legal basis, consent or other authorization exists.

28. Suspension, Termination and Account Closure

Coindrop may suspend, restrict or terminate a user's access if the user violates these Terms, applicable laws, third-party rights, payment terms, security requirements or other applicable policies. Serious violations include unauthorized sharing of content, misuse, fraud, manipulation, attacks on the platform, reputation-damaging conduct, unlawful conduct, sanctions violations or risk to other users.

After account termination, access to the platform and content ends unless mandatory rights or legal obligations provide otherwise. Payment claims, damages claims, intellectual property rights, confidentiality obligations, compliance obligations and liability provisions remain unaffected. Coindrop may make user content available for download for a reasonable period where technically possible, legally permitted and contractually required; after that, content may be deleted.

29. Indemnification

To the extent legally permitted, the user shall indemnify Coindrop, its affiliates, licensors, directors, officers, employees, contractors and service providers against third-party claims arising from unlawful use of the platform, violation of these Terms, violation of third-party rights, unlawful user content, unauthorized sharing of content, misuse of payment data, breach of law or other breach of duty by the user. The indemnification includes reasonable legal-defense costs, court costs, attorney fees and damages to the extent the user is responsible for the breach.

30. Force Majeure

Coindrop is not liable for delays or disruptions caused by events beyond its reasonable control, including natural disasters, war, terrorism, strikes, government actions, pandemics, epidemics, outages of internet, energy, payment providers, hosting providers, logistics providers or other third-party infrastructure, supply-chain disruptions, customs delays, regulatory restrictions or other force majeure events. Performance deadlines are extended for the duration of the event. If performance becomes permanently impossible, Coindrop may withdraw from the contract or terminate affected services to the extent legally permitted.

31. Assignment and Business Transfer

Coindrop may transfer contractual positions, rights and obligations under these Terms to an affiliated company, successor company, acquiring company or another Coindrop entity where legitimate interests of the user are not unreasonably impaired and mandatory law is respected. The user may transfer rights and obligations only with prior written consent of Coindrop, unless mandatory law provides otherwise.

32. Governing Law, Jurisdiction and Consumer Rights

For transactions where Coindrop Legacy F.Z.E is the contracting entity, these Terms are governed by the laws of the United Arab Emirates to the extent legally permitted, excluding conflict-of-law rules. For transactions where Coindrop LLC is the contracting entity, these Terms are governed by the laws of the State of Idaho, United States, to the extent legally permitted, excluding conflict-of-law rules.

For consumers, any choice of law applies only to the extent it does not deprive the consumer of mandatory consumer-protection rights of the country or state where the consumer has habitual residence.

For business users and users acting outside consumer status, the courts at the seat or principal place of business of the relevant Coindrop entity have jurisdiction to the extent legally permitted. Consumers may assert mandatory rights before the courts that are available to them under applicable consumer-protection law.

33. Changes to these Terms

Coindrop may amend these Terms where changes are necessary or appropriate due to legal changes, technical developments, new platform functions, changes in services, security requirements, entity-structure changes, payment-provider requirements, compliance needs or business adjustments. Users will be informed in an appropriate manner where required. If the user continues to use the platform after the effective date of changes, the amended Terms apply to the extent legally permitted. For material changes, Coindrop may request renewed consent.

34. Language Versions

These Terms may be provided in English, German or other languages. The English version is intended for international use. German and other language versions may be provided for convenience or for specific markets. In case of inconsistency, the version expressly accepted by the user in the checkout, account or registration process governs, unless mandatory law requires otherwise.

35. Final Provisions

If individual provisions of these Terms are or become invalid, unenforceable or incomplete, the validity of the remaining provisions remains unaffected. To the extent legally permitted, the invalid or unenforceable provision shall be replaced by a valid provision that comes closest to the economic and legal purpose. The same applies to contractual gaps.

A waiver of rights is effective only if expressly declared. Failure to exercise a right does not constitute a waiver of that right. Headings are for convenience only and do not affect interpretation.
